

Turning Desire Into Gold

It is human nature to desire. We all have our own. Desire is what drives the best of us to achieve our dreams and the worst of us to lose it. Desire, therefore, is the key to life as we wish to live it. We just need to turn it in the right direction. We need to open that door instead of closing it.

To do this, it is important that we do not fear. Fear is the enemy of desire. It locks that door we need to open. It is what separates the winners from the losers. It defeats life from giving us the happiness which is our right. Remove fear and allow desire to burn its way into your heart, your soul, your life.

The inspirational author Napoleon Hill listed down six steps to do this. Consider it the formula for success, and the realization of all we desire, or rather, a procedure, so to speak, to turn our desire into gold.

He was not the only one who has provided us with this formula. Great visionaries through the ages have done so, time and time again. Some thru examples, and others thru words. The greatest of them all was Jesus Christ. Many have listened but did not hear. Many still don't and many still won't. Therefore, if we desire to change our lives into ones well-lived, listen now and listen well.

The first step is to have a fixed idea of what we desire. Let us consider money. After all, money is the currency of life. Regardless of what it is we desire in life, we need that cash together. It is indeed true that money is the key to happiness. So, desire money. Desire a fixed amount of money. Be exact. There is nothing wrong with that. In fact, it is only right. How else can we buy that house, that car, that peace of mind that financial security provides. Be generous to yourself. Desire a big amount. A fixed, exact amount, and get it rolling.

The second step is to determine exactly how you will get it. Nothing is for free. The good news is we all have something to give in return for that money we desire. We all were born with talents and we all have skills we have learned along the way. Use them. But be exact about it. I write. This is my talent.

The third step consists of the element of time. Establish a date for when you intend to possess that money. Make it definite. Make it exact.

Step four requires us to make a plan. Once again, it must be a definite one, on carrying out the realization of our desire. And then, do it at once, ready or not. Remember, do not fear. Go with the knowledge that whatever you do, life is waiting to give you what you should have. Gold is waiting. Happiness too.

The fifth step is merely writing down steps one to four. Write concisely and clearly. In a nutshell, write down the exact amount of money you desire, the exact way in which you will get it, the exact date of when you intend to possess it, and the exact plan to carry it through.

Lastly, but never the least, read it aloud every day, once before sleeping, and then again, upon waking up. Read it with feeling. Read it with such burning desire that you can actually see it in your hands.

Let these six steps be your guide. Let it guide you towards riches and happiness untold. Let it turn your desire into gold.
